The #LABELicious competition is a challenge for young and future professionals in Europe. Could you be one of the future heroes of product labelling? Or are you already working in the label industry, ready to create the most spectacular brand label in the near future?

Enter the competition with your most innovative ideas for labels. You can enter your ideas in the 3 categories:

â€¢ Smart / Intelligent / Multifunctional Labels

#Labelicious calls for truly fresh & feasible ideas about integrating technologies in brand/functional labels to enhance the experience and the value of the label in the end-customerâ€™s business case in 2025. The entry should demonstrate how label converting technology adds value to a label through new functionality, production methods or other technical innovation.

â€¢ Brand Design

#Labelicious calls for next-generation label design, both visually and from a constructive and functional perspective. The entry should demonstrate how in 2025 a branded label creates an outstanding experience, competitive advantage and added value for a brand in its own product category.

â€¢ Sustainability

#Labelicious calls for new approaches to improve sustainability in the field of product labelling. The entry should demonstrate how in 2025 a new approach to label design, production and application can contribute to a positive sustainability performance.

The objective of the #Labelicious competition is to challenge students and young professionals among the next generation of technology operators, creative designers and middle management in the labels and packaging industry to show their vision for labels towards the year 2025.

There is no entry fee.
