The LensCulture Emerging Talent Awards offer a remarkable platform for 25 talented emerging photographers from around the world. It provides an unprecedented opportunity to gain exposure and recognition for their work. The competition seeks early-career photographers who demonstrate exceptional promise and a distinct creative vision. Age, location, and genre are not restricted, encouraging diversity and innovation in submissions.

The jury will carefully select 25 exceptional talents who have not yet received international exposure. The winners will be bestowed with numerous benefits, including cash grants of 12,000 USD and the chance to exhibit their work at a prestigious gallery in New York during The Photography Show, a premier international photo fair. Additionally, their winning series will be published on LensCulture and showcased at various international photo festivals, reaching a wide audience of photography enthusiasts.

Winning photographers will enjoy extensive press coverage in major publications worldwide, elevating their visibility and professional standing in the industry. LensCulture's robust social media presence will further amplify their work, allowing them to connect with a global community of photography enthusiasts. The winning series will also be permanently featured in LensCulture's online gallery, a highly regarded resource for discovering emerging photographic talent.

With its inclusive approach and dedication to nurturing emerging artists, the LensCulture Emerging Talent Awards aim to empower and launch the careers of promising photographers, propelling them into the international photography scene.

Entry Fee: 35 USD for Mini Series (up to 5 photos) and 50 USD for Series (up to 15 photos).

Eligibility

Open to all photographers worldwide, with no age or genre limitations.

Prize

The top 25 winners will receive cash grants, a New York exhibition, international press exposure, and social media visibility. Eight Jurors' Picks will also receive cash awards of 1,500 USD each, totaling 12,000 USD in cash prizes.
