The Nanjing International Biennial of Poster for Peace is a prestigious global event centered around the theme of "Mutual Learning between Civilizations and Peace Co-Construction." This international platform, drawing inspiration from the profound philosophies of ancient Chinese thinkers such as Mencius and Zhuangzi, underscores the intrinsic values of diversity and harmony in human civilization. The overarching mission of this biennial is to foster faith in civilization and usher in a new era of peace through the medium of visual communication.

In a grand celebration of artistry and diplomacy, the Nanjing International Biennial of Poster for Peace aims to eliminate barriers and promote integration through the power of imagery. By showcasing a diverse array of posters, this event encapsulates the trajectory of China’s modernization journey towards peace. In today’s interconnected world, the biennial encourages individuals from all corners of the globe to embrace the spirit of "designing for peace" collaboratively. It seeks to infuse virtuous principles into societal systems and contribute to the realization of global peace.

Participation in this event is open to a wide range of creative minds, including professional designers, artists, students, and design groups from across the world. This esteemed biennial serves as a beacon for those who wish to explore the nexus between civilization, mutual learning, and the co-construction of peace. As a testament to its commitment to global harmony, the Nanjing International Biennial of Poster for Peace provides a platform for artists and visionaries to inspire positive change and promote the values of equality, unity, and understanding on an international scale.

There is no entry fee.
