SMACH, now in its 6th edition, is a public art project born in 2012. It is a biennial open air exhibition that represents the combination of “art and nature”, where the latter acts as the display of the artistic creations, designed and tailored specifically to various sites.

In this edition the theme is the word “Sprouting”, with which the organisers want to stimulate you to imagine what can be born in this era. What seeds would you like to plant? What shoots would you like to see sprout? What would you like to grow (or create) and leave for future generations?

The artists have no boundaries for the design and the size of the work. Each participant may submit a maximum of 2 projects. However, in the event of a win, only one can be selected.

Entry fee is 15 Euro per project proposal.

ELIGIBILITY

Open worldwide to anyone.

PRIZE

The 10 winning projects will be realised thanks to the prize offered and presented in various Alpine locations in Val Badia, in the unique setting of the UNESCO Dolomites, from July to September 2023. Also, the 10 selected artists or group of artists will receive a prize of 2,000 Euro each.
