The Art of Building photography competition is an international platform celebrating the finest digital photography of the built environment. Organized by the Chartered Institute of Building (CIOB), this competition showcases the artistry, creativity, and significance of construction and architecture. Open to both professional and amateur photographers worldwide, it invites participants to capture the essence of the built environment, highlighting the profound connection between human ingenuity and the structures that shape our lives. With no entry fee, the competition is accessible to a broad audience, encouraging participation from talented photographers regardless of their background.

Two coveted awards, the Judges' Choice and the Public's Choice, are at the heart of the competition. Expert judges meticulously evaluate all entries to select a shortlist of approximately twelve exceptional photos. These shortlisted images then proceed to a public vote, allowing audiences to engage directly with the competition and determine the winner of the Public's Choice award. Simultaneously, the Judges' Choice winner is chosen based on its technical excellence, creativity, and storytelling power. Both winners receive a generous £1,500 prize and international recognition, making this competition a valuable opportunity for photographers to showcase their work on a global stage.

The Chartered Institute of Building, known for its dedication to the science, ethics, and practice of the built environment, organizes this competition as a celebration of the industry's creativity and passion. By focusing on the artistry inherent in construction and the impact these structures have on communities, the Art of Building photography competition inspires appreciation for the individuals and ideas that shape our world. Through this platform, the CIOB highlights the transformative power of architecture and construction, inviting people to explore the deeper stories behind the buildings we often take for granted.
