The World Design Organization is calling for submissions for the World Design Impact Prize 2021. The Award program aims to recognize industrial design-driven projects that have a positive impact on our social, economic, cultural, or environmental quality of life.

Entries should showcase the expanding ways that design can make a positive impact on the world, including the design of systems and experiences.

Following a public submission and nomination process, a multi-disciplinary panel of experts selects a shortlist for the Prize, which is then voted on by WDO's member organizations.

There is no entry fee.
