The Andreu World International Design Contest, now in its 23rd edition, is a global competition that encourages innovative and sustainable furniture design. Open to both students and professionals of all ages and from any part of the world, the contest seeks to uncover fresh talents in the fields of design, architecture, and creation. Participants are challenged to create unique and eco-friendly designs for seating and tables, adhering to the principles of circular design. This focus includes zero waste management, a neutral carbon footprint, and the use of sustainable materials, ensuring that each entry supports the goal of a more sustainable future in design.

The competition has a rich history of recognizing and promoting new design talent since its inception in 2001. Over the years, it has attracted tens of thousands of participants from more than a hundred countries, making it one of the most prestigious design contests in the world. The 2024 edition, themed the "Circular Design@ Challenge," aims to push the boundaries of sustainable design further. Participants are expected to consider the entire lifecycle of their products, ensuring durability, reparability, and minimal environmental impact. The designs must be original, innovative, and not previously marketed or published, providing a platform for fresh, groundbreaking ideas in the industry.

Judged by a panel of renowned experts, including designers, architects, and industry professionals, the Andreu World International Design Contest offers significant exposure and recognition to its winners. The top prize of €20,000 and three special mentions highlight the contest's commitment to rewarding excellence and innovation. By focusing on sustainability and the use of eco-friendly materials, the contest not only promotes responsible design practices but also encourages participants to think creatively about the future of furniture design. This initiative aligns with Andreu World's dedication to fostering new talent and contributing to a more sustainable and innovative design industry.

There is no entry fee.
