DesignMarch is Iceland's annual design festival. It will take place for the eleventh time on 28â€“31 March 2019

. This will be the largest and most significant festival yet with over one hundred events transforming the most northerly capital in the world into one big venue for design.

From fashion to furniture, architecture to the environment, food to product design, the festival showcases the best of the local design scene alongside exciting international names. The festival opens with DesignTalks, a day of lectures by internationally acclaimed designers and leading local design thinkers.

For DesignMarch 2019, a six members selection committee will review applications for participation and select exhibitions and events that will be featured at the festival.
