The Escucha Mi Voz Poster Contest 2024 calls upon designers, graphic artists, and visual artists to engage in a global conversation through their art. This year's theme, "Territories," focuses on the significant impact of global processes on local territories. The contest encourages participants to explore how external influences shape the social, cultural, and economic dynamics within different regions. By submitting their work, artists can contribute to a broader dialogue about land ownership, indigenous rights, and the preservation of communal spaces.

Participants are invited to submit up to ten posters, each designed to adhere to specific technical requirements outlined on the contest's official website. The posters must be in a vertical format, measuring 2953 x 4134 pixels at 150 dpi, and submitted in JPG format. This ensures that all entries maintain a high standard of quality and are suitable for exhibition. The contest organizers emphasize the importance of understanding the theme deeply, encouraging participants to read the provided brief and related materials to enhance their conceptual approach.
