Since 1987, the SEGD Global Design Awards have set the standard of excellence for environmental graphic design and experiential graphic design, honouring design work that connects people to place by providing direction, content, and compelling experiences in public spaces.

Winning projects have ranged from interactive multimedia environments to complex hospital way-finding systems and from branded corporate environments to museum exhibitions. Retail and interior projects, architectural signing, public art, design research, and books have also won awards.

There are seven main categories:

â€¢ Digital Experience

â€¢ Exhibition

â€¢ Interactive Experience

â€¢ Placemaking and Identity

â€¢ Public Installation

â€¢ Strategy/Research/Planning

â€¢ Wayfinding

A multi-disciplinary jury representing practitioners from a diversity of design disciplines, as well as clients, users, and students, will evaluate the submissions and select winning projects based on their effectiveness in connecting people to place, creating a unique and memorable user experience, and solving the clientâ€™s objectives and design challenge.
